Steve Roberts' custom-built bicycle is a testament to his passion for mobility and technology. The bicycle is equipped with a large white fairing, a yellow storage box, and a yellow helmet. It is a unique and innovative design that reflects Steve's vision of a high-tech nomad.

HIGH TECH NOMAD

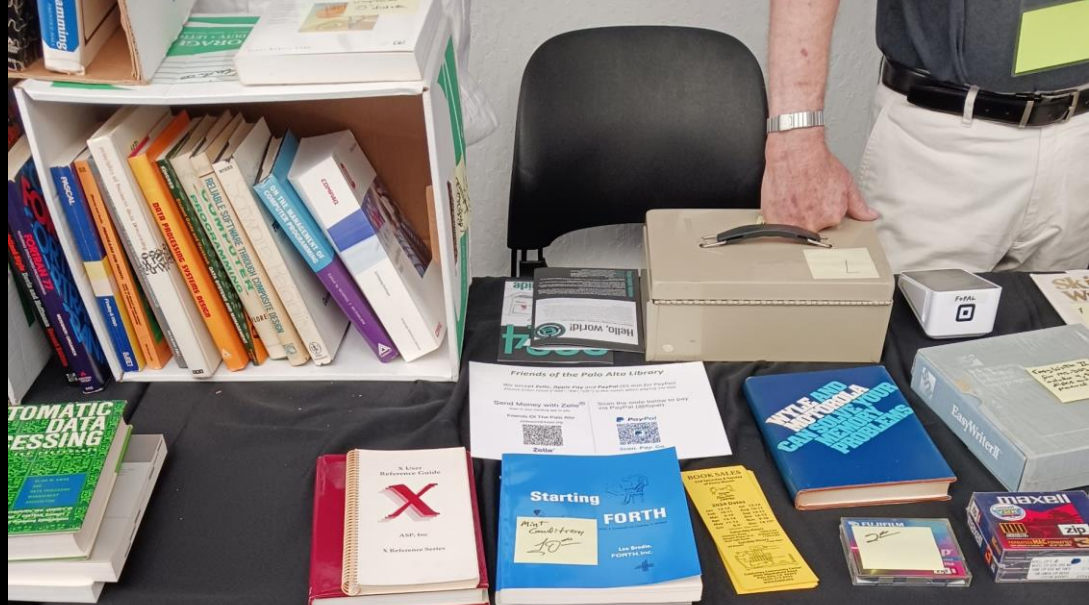

Today we take mobility for granted. When technical writer Steve Roberts decided to be a "high tech nomad" it was a radical dream. Eventually his writing journey overtook his day job. He put
